PREFACE

Hsing-Cheng Military Complex includes four separate areas, located along the rail-line connecting Chin-Chou and Tientsin in the general vicinity of Hsing-Cheng (See Figure 2). For the purpose of this report the areas are combined because of their location and their similarity to each other and the units of the Shih-Shan-Chan Military Complex (41 15N-121 30E).

The Bombing Encyclopedia installations included within the reported areas are: Hsing-Cheng Army Barracks SW [] 40 33N-120 36E) Probable Infantry Regiment C; Hsing-Cheng Barracks and Headquarters 120th Infantry Division [] 40 39N-120 43E) Figure 3; Hsing-Cheng Army Barracks Lien-Shan SW [] 40 42N-120 47E) Probable Infantry Regiment B; and Chin-Hsi Army Barracks NE [] 40 46N-120 52E) Probable Infantry Regiment A.

25X1

Comparisons will be made throughout the report to the similarities between this area and the complex at Shih-Shan-Chan.

All measurements have been made by the CIA/IAD project analyst.

These probable regimental areas display a high degree of similarity to each other and to the three probable infantry regimental areas at Shih-Shan-Chan. The barracks/administration areas at these facilities can be subdivided into four subunits primarily by the building arrangements and the location of the C-shaped administration buildings. The only exception to this pattern is probable Infantry Regiment B which is missing one of the four subunits.

A small training area, including one small arms/subcaliber range, is associated with each area.
